Greedfall is a fantastic RPG adventure created by spiders, but it can be said that it is less indulgent than some RPGs in some aspects. As a result, many players lose a lot of great content in the game or do not get decent results on certain missions, since they do not realize the mistakes they are committing. Just then, we have covered some of the main mistakes that new players commit when playing Greedfall, and we cover exactly how you can avoid them. Just warning ⚠️ There are some spoilers ahead in relation to the main story. They are excluded from romance options when it comes to romance in Greedfall, players have four different options depending on the Gerno who have chosen for Sardet: Aphra, Kurt, Basque and Siora. The problem is that the game is really relentless when it comes to romance, and if you choose the wrong dialogue option even once, there is no romance for you. For romance of each character, you must complete your three personal lateral missions and then choose the correct dialogram option at the end of each mission. Even a mistake and you will not be able to get romance achievement / trophy for that character. In addition, only one character can be romance by a play, so this makes more task to obtain all the praise related to romance. Not to miss the romance you have chosen, make sure you follow a guide for your favorite accompanying for you to choose the right options when you talk to them: they get Kurt Killed Kurt is the first accompanied that the players get in the game, and as for history, he knows from Sardet since childhood. Players who do not pay enough attention to their companions and do not carry out their secondary missions can be seen by accidentally losing Kurt "permanent.â" approximately halfway, is the mission "Tradition!" that sees the Coin Guard attempt a coup against the governors of New Serene, San Matheus and Hikmet. Kurt leads the coup and if the players have not completed the Kurt, Kurt, secondary missions, they will be forced to fight their ex-companion. Whether you decide to save Kurt's life or not, the final result is the same as he will shoot if you let him live. To prevent Kurt's death, make sure you complete your first two secondary missions called "Missing in Action" and "Among the Ghosts" before starting with the main story called "A Prince's Secret". Once this has been done, during the Kurt coup, it will be detected next to you and will help you defeat the Coin Guard. The great thing about GreedFall that makes it stand out from many other RPGs is that it is actually much more simplified and does not have filling missions and pointless searches. All missions, including side missions, have an impact. Although not all side missions have a direct impact on history, they all impact relationships with the various factions within the game and thus can affect the story that way. Players are too much used for sideches being inconsequential and so often just button slide their way through dialogue, but that's a serious mistake in GreedFall where their dialogue options can make or break relationships with their peers and other factions. They don't level the right talents. There are six different types of talents in GreedFall and it is impossible to level all talents in a single playthrough, so you have to be super demanding about what you choose to unlock. There are teams that help increase talents, and their peers can also give a level rise while they are at their party. Talents are the following: Charisma: Reduces the price of the articles of the merchants, improves the combat skills of the companions, and increases the possibility of success for certain dialogue options. Science: This allows you to make potions and can destroy weak walls using explosive vials. Lockpicking: This allows you to collect locks and see traps more easily. This allows you to see meeting points more easily, increases the number of items obtained from the collection collection looting and unlocking options for extra dialogue. Vigor: It allows you to pass through difficult areas, such as balance or rock climbing, increases the maximum capacity of ammunition, and allows you to recover HP and magic out of combat. Crafts: This allows you to create armor and weapons. However, not leveling the right talents can see players falling short when it comes to important parts of the story. It is highly recommended to level Charisma and Intuition as soon as possible to open more dialogue options throughout all missions, helping you to get the best results and improve your relationships with several factions, which is necessary to get the best possible end in the game. Players are able to re-establish their talents with a Memory Crystal article, however, only one of these is given free, all others have to be won and there is only a limited number that you can get in total. They do not keep the disguises in hand There are specific points in history where it is required to disguise itself as a certain faction to gain entry to some restricted place. However, it is really useful to keep the costumes hand-held for different factions, as you can find yourself being able to enter certain areas or move from the NPCs more easily when you do. It can be said if a piece of armor can count as a "disfraction" for a given faction based on the faction symbol at the bottom right of the article. In addition, only body armor is required for a successful costume. The different faction symbols are as follows: Nauts: A pale blue shield with a golden symbol. Currency Guard: A black shield with cross white swords. Subject: A red shield with a golden sun symbol. Merchants Congregation: A white shield with a blue "V" backwards with gold stains. Bridge Alliance: A Blue and Green Shield with a Lion in the middle. Native: a gray diamond with a white swirl. Do not choose your party carefully there are five different companies that you can choose to have in match: Kurt, Siora, Aphra, Vasco and Petrus. However, in addition to De Sardet, you can only have two others accompanying you at any time. While it is tempting to choose your favorite characters and go for it, it is more important that players weigh the pros and cons of each partner. Each character has its own strengths and weaknesses when it comes to battle, and it is crucial to try to maintain some kind of classic match set-up that uses a tank and a healer to a minimum. Taking into account your own choice of combat style, that could mean taking companions that can heal or tank for you, that would not necessarily have chosen the opposite. In addition, each character has its own advantages to contribute in terms of talents, so having certain partners in your party will level their talents while they are with you. These are all the things that players must take into account when choosing who is in their game. Do not pay attention to different factions There are different factions within the game, and as mentioned above, everything you do affects your relationships with them. It is very important that players take the time to complete all available side missions for them, select the best dialogue options, and choose the best story-based decisions to get the best possible end. Near the end of the game on the main mission entitled "Together for the Teer Fradee", players will have to try to reconcile all factions (except the Merchants Congregations) to get the best ending, but this is only possible if you have a reputation "Friend" with all of them. In addition, the leader of some of the factions can change depending on the options you have taken, so make sure you choose people who support you when the time comes. They don't keep multiple saves. The gold rule of most RPGs is to save to avoid save multiple savings files too, but this is especially true of GreedFall as the game is full of decisions that can severely affect your Save often and keep different files handy so that if you need to go back to fix a past decision, at least you don't have to restart from the beginning. In addition, this is useful for hunters of achievements/trophy, as there are points where the ramification decisions each reward with a padding. Saving before making the decision allows you to recharge and choose the other option to get both accoiades without having to replay the game through everything again.
