The Royal Commission in a conduct in banking, retirement and financial services, also known as the Royal Bank Commission and the Royal Commission of Hayne, was a commissá Real established on December 14, 2017 by the Australian Government, according to the Royal Commissions Act 1902 to inquire and report the conduct in the banking, retirement and financial services. The establishment of the Commission followed Revelations in the media of a culture of ganance within several Australian financial institutions. [1] Subsequent parliamentary investigation recommended a real commission, observing the lack of regulatory intervention by relevant government authorities, [2] and more revelations that financial institutions were involved in Money wash for drug unions, turn their eyes to terrorist financing, and ignored the statutes to report responsibilities [3] and impropriety in exchange rate negotiation. [4] The Honorable Kenneth Madison Hayne AC QC, the former Justice of the Supreme Court of Australia, served as a unique commission and presented a mid-term report to the Governor General of Australia on 28 September 2018, which was presented by the government the same day. [5] The Royal Commission held seven rounds of public hearings over 68 days, summoned more than 130 witnesses and revised more than 10,000 public submissions. [6] Commissioner Hayne presented a final report to the Governor-General on 1 February 2019 with 76 separate recommendations. [7] The final report and government response to the report were made public on February 4, 2019. [6] Michelle Grattan characterized the then-next liberal-national abddet government as being "determined to weaken the protections" that Labor had introduced, although she noted that these attempts were defeated by the Senate cross bank. [8] In the light of an account fraud scandal at the American bank Wells Fargo, on May 5, 2014 ABC TV Four Corners, together with journalists Fairfax, broadcast an exhibition of a sales-oriented culture within the Commonwealth Bank (CBA) financial planning division, which was described as profit at all costs. [1] chaired by Labor Senator Mark Bishop, a subsequent Senate committee inquiry recommended a royal commission for the fraud scandal that left thousands of CBA customers millions of dollars out of pocket. The committee reported on the performance of the Australian Securities and Investment Commission (ASIC). [2] Several days later, CBA executive director Ian Narev apologized without reserve to customers who lost money in the bank's financial planning scandal. Treasurer at the time, Joe Hockey, whose mother was impacted by the scandal, stated that the bank did not act quickly enough to solve the problem. [9] The CBA was subsequently involved in other issues, including money laundering for the drug trade unions, turning a blind eye to terrorist financing, ignoring the legal reporting responsibilities for more than three years in more than 750,000 accounts, [3] and impropriety in the negotiation Cambio. [4] The National Bank of Australia (NAB) was implicated during 2015 in one sitting © Series of scandals about financial planners where it was revealed Nab has paid discreetly millions of dollars in compensations for hundreds of clients' Inside the Nab. [10] [11] ASIC has forbade NAB staff who were previously licensed to provide financial advice. [12] Subsequently, it was revealed that the Nab also implicated in impropriety in the Committee of foreign currency [4] Westpac was implicated in allegations that manipulated one of the main interest rates of Australia, the rate of exchange of accounts banks [13] [13] and was processed under employee laws responsible for using an automated process to decide whether employees to people's housing satisfied the criteria of Empreter [15] [16] In addition, a Westpac banker was arrested for lending fraudulently millions of dollars to elderly pensioners [17] After investigations of Asic, Westpac was instructed to do a donation $ 3á, Million for Financial Literacy Australia After the Asic's employees have discovered that bank employees have issued confidential details of their customers' orders to other currency traders [18] Westpac reimbursed 65th, Million dollars to 220,000 customers after having no the benefits that they should have received under business packages, including self-
