The Garuda Purana text is known in many versions, containing between Garudapurnaam, at 19. Finchman estimates that the text was sometimes composed in the 1st millennium of the common era, but it is probably compiled and changed for a long period of time. Leadbeater states that the text is likely to CE, since it includes chapters on yoga and tantra techniques that have probably developed later. The version of Garuda Purana that survives in the modern era, Dalal states, it is likely Garudaouram to CE with sections added the 2nd millennium. The text exists in many versions, with a variable number of significantly different chapters and content. At the end of the nineteenth century and at the beginning of the 20th century, a text called Garudapuranasaroddara was published, then translated by Ernest Wood and Sv Subrahmanyam.La Garuda Purana is a Vaishnava Purana and has, according to tradition, nineteen Shlokas verses . The Purva Khanda contains on the chapters, but in some versions of the text this section has among the chapters. The Garuda Purana was probably molded after the Puranathe Agni other important religious religious indicate that the living body is a microcosm of the universe, ruled with same laws and realized by the same substances. The text describes Vishnu, Vaishnava Festivals and Puja Worbirsand offers Mahatmya Á ç à,~ "A guide to the pilgrimage tour [22] to sacred places related to Vishnu. The Garuda Purana includes chapters on the above And design of a temple. The second design details presented in the Garuda Purana are for a square grill, with four PADA interior squares for adytum. Temples, says text, exist in many thematic forms. Every thematic form of the temple architecture allows nine styles of temples, and the Purana lists all the styles of forty-five. The temple design, says Jonathan Parry, follows the homology of the foundation of Indu, that the cosmos and the body are the harmonious correspondence to each other, the temple is a model and the reminder of this cosmic homology. First the shape, color, defects or excellence of a gem should be carefully tested and therefore its price should be ascertained in consultation with a gem expert who has studied all the books that take care of precious stones. The Garuda Purana describes 14 gems, their varieties and how to test their quality. The technical discussion of the gems in the text is woven with the theories of him on the mythical creation of every gem, astrological meaning and talisman benefits. The text describes the features of the gems, as Garudapranam and realize jewelry from them, warning that GEM experts should be consulted before buying them. Chapter 93 of the Garuda Purvakhanda presents the theory of the Yajnavalkya sage on the virtuation of Virtuation Gaudapurram. The text states that knowledge is condensed in the texts of Vedasin of different schools of philosophy such as Nyaya and Telughthe Shastras on Dharma, to make money and temporal sciences written by fourteen saints. A gift, made at a suitable moment and place, to a worthy person, in a true spirit of sympathy compassionate, leads the merit of all kinds of pegs. The text discusses in a similar way to the following virtues - right conduct, damah self-restraintahimsa not killing, non-violence in shares, words and pensistudying the VedaSand performing reasons of passage. No diet rules are recommended for Shuddranor. The thread ceremony is discussed. The Garuda Purana states that the highest and most imperative religious duty is to intrudate in the unique of one's soul, looking for self-communion. Little by little by little a mountain should be climbing. Shortly desires should be gratified. Save money for trouble times, says Garuda Purana, but be willing to give up everyone to save your wife. The text securedly rhetorically against the application of knowledge that is married to pettily, precautions against the pursuit of physical beauty without innovating the mind, and precautionally against making friends with those who abandon their loved ones in adverse. Him of excellence, says the Purana, I live with honest means, they are faithful to their wives, pass their time in intellectual activities and are hospitable for newcomers. Governance is part of the Nitisastra section of the Garuda Purana, and this section later influenced Indian texts on pollics and economics. The Purvakhanda, from the chapter onwards describes the characteristics of a good king and good governance. A stable king is one whose kingdom is prosperous, whose treasure is full, and that he never caught the ministers or servants of him. The chapters of the Garuda Purana Purvakhanda present the Dhanvantari Samhita, his treatise on medicine. Parts of the pathology and chapters related to the Medicine of Garuda Purana, States Ludo Rocher, are similar to Nidanasthana by Astangahriday Telugu of Nidanasthana, and these two can be different manuscripts of the same text underlying but now lost. The text includes various lists of diseases, agricultural products, herbs, formulations with To Garuxapuranam medicine and this information. The chapter of the text presents veterinary diseases of the horse and their treatment. It is the knowledge that dissipates this notion of duality. The yogins, through yoga, make their units with the supreme Brahman. This this is It's called Mukti. The last ten chapters of Purvakhanda is dedicated to Yogaand sometimes referred to as Brahma Gita. The text describes a variety of ASANAS Posturehen adds that the positions are means, not the goal. The Garuda Purana in the Captestati lan Whicher, recommends using Saguna Vishnu with a murti in the early stages of yoga meditation to help concentration and draw in the attention of one with the help of the gross form of the object. After this it was burned, he states the text, meditation should pass by saguna to nirgunaunto the thin and abstract Vishnu shapeless inside, with the help of a Guru teacher.
