Summerslam 1989 report

-DiBiase tries a sneak attack but Snuka punches and headbutts him out of the ring. Rude just keeps up the attack and goes for another pin, and it's another two-count. Rude goes for the Rude Awakening, but Warrior fights it off. He bodyslams both of the Twin Towers, but Andre ends the momentum with a single chop. Great subtle joke as Genius likens the main event to a game of poker, saying that Hogan & Beefcake are deuces, while Savage & Zeus are a royal flush. GREG "The Hammer" VALENTINE (with Jimmy Hart) -Garvin had been feuding with Valentine since arriving in the WWF. -Rude makes it to his feet first. Series of punches stagger Zeus. Dusty gets a toehold, but Honky goes to the eyes to break it. He drags him over to Bret and makes the tag, and Bret goes for his own wristlock. ULTIMATE WARRIOR -I love those moments when the crowd pops immediately upon hearing the heel's music and figuring out what match is coming up. Rude goes for the sleeper, but Warrior fights out of that with a jawjack. -Geez, awarding the point for this one is such a foregone conclusion that I feel like just typing "1 for 1" and moving on to the next match, but, what the hell. Leapfrog spot is blown when Snuka...como se dice?... "pulls a Williams," let's say, and the crowd audibly groans. Suplex by Warrior for another two-count. Tully attempts a desperation move off the second rope but Anvil catches him in a bearhug and rams him into the corner. Crowd's wild, but that was a lot of fun to watch. 1 for 1. On the off-chance that somebody's girlfriend was watching wrestling for the first time ever tonight, she'd be really confused. SUPERFLY JIMMY SNUKA vs. Interesting this is that Dusty hasn't really wrestled on Prime Time so at least from my perspective it's like this is his first match of this run. career match with a handful of fights, and Garvin coped with it by getting a new job as a referee. -Hogan fights his way back to his feet, but Zeus rams him into the corner and makes the tag. Rick Martel re-enters and suddenly Tito begins throwing punches, catching his ex-partner off guard. Irish whip is reversed by Janetty, but Martel dodges the follow-through charge. Anvil tags in, too, and gets a kick to the stomach before going back to the wristlock. That leaves Hogan & Zeus. Smart move as the Harts do their "Irish whip each other into our own opponents" spot and Arn becomes the first tag team partner ever to just pull his partner out of harm's way, and Anvil's a "hurtin". The Harts surprised them by being ready for a fight, and when all else failed, the Busters got the win just by doing something intelligent. INTERCONTINENTAL TITLE: RAVISHING RICK RUDE (champion, with Bobby Heenan) vs. That alone gets a point. Back in the ring, Valentine can't stop looking at Valentine and falls victim to a roll-up. Jacques offers a handshake and Tito demurs. -DiBiase slams Snuka and goes for the Falling Elbow That He Never Ever Hits, and Snuka moves out of the way. Beefcake gets the sleeper on Savage. Jacques tags in and gets a good-looking dropkick, celebrating with a "Woo-hoo!" Tito tries to tag but Jacques drags him to the heel corner. Savage goes to the top rope (tagging Zeus on his way up) and scores the flying elbow, but Hogan no-sells it (damn "reviving elbow" properties...) and atonic drops Savage out of the ring. Anvil powers out by standing up and piggybacking Tully, but Tully manages to tag from that position and Arn attacks with fists and forearms. Zeus tags back in and chokes Brutus with the top rope, then chokes him on the mat. Inverted atonic drop and Warrior mocks him with a hip swivel for good measure. Snuka atonic drops DiBiase back out of the ring. Nice. Piper, it turns, moons Rude and walks away. He had severe problems with anger management though and had an unfortunate tendency to get into fistfights with the heels, which came to a head when he flat-out cost Greg Valentine a match. Tony Schiavone says that if he was in their position, he would defend his title, and Jesse immediately calls "bullshit" on that. He clears the ring of Arn and hits a second rope elbow on Tony. Brutus tries to make the save by coming in off the top rope, but Zeus catches him in a bearhug, takes him out, and puts Hogan in a bearhug. "Macho Man" RANDY SAVAGE & ZEUS (with Sensational Sherri) -Four-man brawl to start, but Zeus is impervious to everything Hogan does, so Hogan attacks the eyes. Heenan distracts Martella and Arn sneaks in with a double axehandle and pins Bret quickly for the win. DiBiase gets the advantage back with a stungun and stomps Snuka. Hell, he knew it too, he was an actor and he knew he was in over his head here. Suplex is blocked and reversed by Hercules. Running powerslam by Warrior, but Rude raises the knees to block a splash. Garvin, in need of a new way to annoy Valentine, wessels his way into a gig as a guest ring announcer for this match. This match was NOT a classic. 4 for 7. -Savage grabs Sherri's loaded purse and attacks from behind to K.O. Brutus. He has a flag in one hand, a 2x4 with a tiny crown in the other hand, and he's wearing a crown, a cape, and a hockey mask. DUSTY: Ha ha, yeah! Americana! The Honky Tonk Man! Jimmy Hart! Play a guitar! Not be cruel! Heartbreak Hotel! Sleep with my teddy bear, if you will! But don't mess with Americana! The Common Man himself! Because I got one thing for you, Honky, and that is just what I said. -For good measure, Hogan atonic-drops Sherri and she lands in front of Elizabeth, but she gets her out with the loaded purse to knock her out, and they finish things by cutting her hair (actually a fairly obvious fake braid for tonight). Anvil fights out of the corner but Arn's ready for him and sends him off the ropes. -Note from 2020: They actually bungled the execution of this whole storyline a bit. Zeus Irish whips Hogan and gets another bearhug. Big splash finishes and the crowd damn near riots at the sound of the bell. Martel tags in, but Shawn Michaels is a house of fire on the hot tag and destroys him. Zeus rams him into the corner and continues choking away. Warrior goes out to the floor and rams Rude into a table, then hits him with the belt, leading Jesse to ask, "Where the hell is the referee?" This triggers a hilarious debate between Tony & Jesse about the old issue of "Is it no-DQ if you're both outside of the ring?" It's hilarious mainly because it's so one-sided; Jesse absolutely dominates Tony, first by offering a hypothetical situation involving a gun outside of the ring, then just yelling "You're even dumber than Monsoon! I thought Gorilla was the stupidest guy alive!" -Warrior goes back in the ring, then tosses Rude over the top rope again and bodyslams him on the floor. I explain all of this only because it's going to be important later. See how well that would have tied together the promo? Of course the referee happily allows that. Elbow off the ropes and Hercules goes for an early pin but gets two. Dusty makes it to his feet and gets a slam, but again, Honky dodges the elbow and goes back to the headlock. Bret goes for the hammerlock again as Jesse notes that the Hart Foundation "has literally dominated the Brain Busters," and I'm pretty sure that's the only time in history that a wrestling commentator has used the word "literally" correctly. RICK MARTEL & FABULOUS ROUGEAU BROTHERS (with Slick & Jimmy Hart) -I don't give a damn who wins and loses because I love the Rougeaus' entrance theme. Here now is Dusty, not so much cutting a promo as he is engaging in a stream of consciousness. This was in the middle of an angle where Tony Schiavone joined the commentary team on Wrestling Challenge and Roddy Piper joined Prime Time Wrestling; Heenan, in turn, quit in a huff about being forced to share airtime with more people. King Duggan removes his crown & hockey mask to show that he has painted his face like the American flag. A three-way collision wipes out both men and the referee. Rude gets another piledriver for two. Sherri hops on the apron waving her purse and Elizabeth runs over and trips her up, causing her to fall into the ring. He drops the elbow a few times to injure the arm, but Tully takes a few steps backward to tag in Arn. Savage runs out of the ring and grabs at Elizabeth and Hogan runs out to rescue her. Bossman backs him in the corner and pounds him. Tully tries a hipstoss but Anvil blocks it with a clubbing forearm and goes back to the wristlock. Series of clotheslines and a powerslam off the ropes put Rude down, but the referee is still out. A huge foot to the chest knocks Ax out of the ring. Basically, I'm uploading a revised and edited version of the 2010 reviews. -Anyway, the countdown show is your expected montage of clips and promos, but I simply must stop and acknowledge the Hulk Hogan/Brat vs. Beefcake promo for a moment. Martel & Raymond run in and the Rockers launch Tito for a flying bodypress on both men. Santana goes for a quick pin after some punches but Raymond kicks out and we're back to the side headlock. DiBiase slugs him a few times and follows with a suplex for two. Anvil holds on, Series of hits to the Hart corner, and tags in Bret. -Post-match, Sean Mooney talks to Honky, who is suffering from amnesia and thinks he actually is Elvis...Wisely dropped and forgotten about with no follow-up. -Back in the ring, we have Tito with a side-headlock on Raymond. Virgil tries to mount a distraction but gets a knee to the chest for his trouble. Jacques & Rick Martel give Tito a double stungun and Martel follows up by striking Tito with force. Perfect gets Rooster with an armdrag and a hipstoss. Clothesline and a headlock by Savage. Jesse can't keep it together and just takes fun of Mean Gene for screwing up. Bret goes to the top and Anvil powerslams him on top of Tully. Rude continues working the back with forearms and gets a chinlock. Tully comes in with an elbow off the top, followed by a chinlock and thank God for the chinlock because my fingers were starting to go numb. -Tully starts to fight out with chops, but Anvil no-sells it and gives him a nasty shot to the chest, then Irish whips him. Irish whip by Tito and the Rockers run in for a double leapfrog, a double hipstoss, and double elbows. HULK HOGAN & BRUTUS "The Barber" BEEFCAKE (with Miss Elizabeth) vs. Say it out there! Honky! Honky! Honky! I'm comin' for you, Daddy! Americana is hyanth for the Honky Tonk Man! -In six-man tag action, we'll see Andre the Giant, Big Boss Man, and Akeem team up. -Zeus could not work for shit and I'm not exactly revealing a big secret by saying that. Savage comes off the top rope with a sunset flip, but Ax gets caught with a shot to the gut. Probably the best match for either man at the time, although better things would come for both of them. Harts clear the ring again. Arn gets a drop toehold and attempts to build off of it, but Bret counters with a hammerlock. Duggan comes back in with another arm-wringer and tags in Ax. Ax gets a front facelock, but Ax gets caught in the wrong corner and Andre tags in. It was NOT a Match of the Year candidate. And they edit this out of the WWE Network version! Come on! TITO SANTANA & ROCKERS vs. 3 for 5. Boot sends Savage to the floor and Hogan pulls him back in with a suplex, but Sherri hooks the leg and turns it into a pin for Savage. Back in the ring, Valentine finally gets the advantage with elbows and goes for a figure-four, but Hercules pushes him off. Of course he only gets a two-count. Warrior does an awesome move that I simply cannot identify, where he grabs Rude in a Heimlich position, lifts him up high, and then drops him straight down on his ass. Tito gets a sunset flip and the crowd goes insane, but it only gets two. NON-TITLE MATCH: BRAIN BUSTERS (tag team champions, with Bobby Heenan) vs. Second, how easy would it have been for Brutus to just regurgitate his catchphrase for an answer? Anvil makes the tag, and Bret takes on both men. -Quick note: History of WWE says that there was a breach of kayfabe when the Rougeau Brothers' theme played during two pinfall attempts. Snuka gets a slam of his own and gets a headbutt off the middle rope, and heads for the top rope to finish things, and he just waits up there FOREVER until Virgil remembers that it's supposed to be his cue and we get a Virgil-Snuka brawl outside the ring. So there's the famous story of how Dusty had to job to Ted DiBiase on his first night with the company just to make a point to the boys that he wasn't in charge here, but honestly, you can tell by the structure of the match that Dusty isn't booking for the WWF because if he was, he would have led off with a DDT, a Perfect-Plex, a three-point stance, and then an atonic legdrop for the two-count. RED ROOSTER vs. This angle, by the way, led directly to four glorious weeks of The Bobby Heenan Show- well, two glorious weeks of The Bobby Heenan Show plus two other episodes of it. Yes, it was Wrestlingcrap for allowing an actor to leapfrog to main event status in his debut match, but the truth as evidenced here is that Zeus was never in the ring long enough to ruin anything. Savage sneaks back into the ring and tries to pin the still-unconscious Beefcake, but Hogan again blocks the pin. Really, he should have just moved onto ring announcer like it was his new job, and been the ring announcer for Summerslam until this match and given himself fired again, and then Valentine, in a fit of exasperation, would demand Garvin be reinstated just to get his hands on him legally in a match. It simply meant that they would always be smarter than their opponents, and that's exactly what we saw. They've been waiting for this. -Headlock by Honky. Bret works the arm a little more and tags in Anvil, who works the arm. -Martel panics and chokes him. Savage tags back in but we immediately fall into a double-clothesline to put both men on the mat. It's just that it's easier to type "Ax axes him and Smash smashes him" than it is to type "Ax does that thing where he does a lot of axehandles really, really fast on his opponent's back and then Smash comes in and does clubbing forearms on his opponent's back really, really fast and then they do it together." -Another arm-wringer by Duggan and he rams Akeem into the corner. Clothesline takes Zeus down to one knee, and the crowd loses their shit. Savage runs in to the pull her out, but she leaves the purse in there and Hogan wallops Zeus with it. Duggan gets an arm wringer and tags in Ax. Axes axes Akeem, Smash tags in and smashes him. Arn gets over to block it, but Bret is waiting for him and we have another brawl. Back in the ring, it's Jacques vs. Rooster sends him off the ropes and does a series of leapfrogs, and we have a problem as he collapes to the mat after each one. In the course of the chase, Tully manages to get back in the ring and get a tag without Bret seeing it, and Arn attacks from behind. He'd come in long enough to frighten the crowd, choke Hogan, and turn the reins back over to Savage. Warrior starts to stir as Rude works him with chops and punches, but Warrior counters with a suplex, but Warrior collapses with the same, followed by a backdrop. He goes for the pin and Anvil gets the greatest kick-out ever, as Arn actually goes the length of the ring from the force. (For those who think I'm trying to be clever and failing, I'm not trying to be clever. Dusty was wearing a policeman's hat and carrying the nightstick & handcuffs that he stole from Big Bossman, continuing that weird 80s tradition of having a guy who had a hot feud wrestle a different opponent at the pay-per-view. Mean Gene later elaborated on what went wrong here, as all of these promos were taped before the event started, and the flub here was just something to the effect of "Somebody cued up tape #24 in the machine instead of tape #25," so he didn't really get in trouble for this. It turns into a six-man brawl. Stand by for the explanation. 1 for 3 but it's not like you can blame them for what went wrong here. Arn makes it to the corner for a tag, but in a subtle bit that you don't see anymore, the referee won't allow the tag because Tully had a foot on the bottom rope instead of having both feet on the mat. HART FOUNDATION -The match was announced in July and the Brain Busters won the titles a week later, meaning that defending the titles was optional. Roddy Piper runs in with a riddle for Mean Gene: "What's a Scotsman wear under his kilts? Smash fights back but Bossman goes for the eyes. 1 for 2. Honky dodges a blind charge and attempts an Irish whip, but Dusty ends up tackling the referee by accident. Bossman drops an elbow but Ax stops a pinfall attempt. I know I'm going to catch hell from a friend or two about this, but I'm giving it a point. Bret gets a pair of armdrags and a wristlock. Back in, Dusty gets an arm wringer, and while Honky's trapped, Dusty tussles his hair. Fist off the top rope gets two as Rowdy Roddy Piper arrives at ringside. BRUTUS: (Obviously stuck for an answer) Scary Sherri! Oh...When I get my hands on that Scary Sherri, brother...I don't know what I'm gonna do! HULK: I'll tell you what, brother! Give her a Baldo Renaldo for me! -First of all, I'm pretty sure that Baldo Renaldo is some kind of slang for what's probably happening to Nasty Nick as I type this (because Nick was in prison at the time, you see). Commentary on this is so funny, as the NWA-bred Tony Schiavone objects strenuously to Jesse's contention that Fijian wrestlers have hard heads and apologizes for calling Snuka "an animal," apparently oblivious to the WWF's ethnic conventions that we all came to know and love during this era. Jack Tunney, in turn, fired him. -Your hosts are Tony Schiavone & Jesse Ventura. MISTER PERFECT -Shoving match to start and Perfect backs away from Rooster. He was pretty much a jobber to the stars after Strike Force split up, but for whatever reason, the crowds never had any problem believing "tonight might be Tito's night." Hell, in 1991, he went up against Mr. Perfect in the main event of a house show that I attended, and despite the fact that it had been at least six months since we had seen Tito go over a name opponent, that crowd was totally behind him. Janetty reverses a roll-up by Jacques, but Martel sneaks in with a blow from behind and gets the pin. Yes, they have literally dominated. Jesse: A+ for you. Problem is, it's 1989 and the phrase in that hard-to-describe window where a pop culture reference isn't trendy anymore, but there's not yet enough nostalgia for it to be a hilarious reference, so he just looks like a dork for saying it. His shoes!" Piper proudly takes credit for costing Rude his Intercontinental Title. Instead of being insistent on carrying and dominating the match when he knew he couldn't, Zeus would come in, to the three moves he knew, and when his arsenal was exhausted, he would tag out and let the three other guys (Savage, always an awesome worker; Beefcake, having the best year of his life as a worker for whatever reason; Hogan, not a great mat technician but awesome at reading a crowd and responding to them accordingly) carry the bout. Tully gets an armlock but Bret bridges out. -Backstage, Mister Perfect gloats about his victory, building up to his big main event push. It deserved the point. Dusty breaks the hold but Honky immediately gets a knee and an axehandle to keep Dusty down, and we're back to the headlock. Arn finally gets some offense, a headsissors, but Bret kicks out and Arn finally gets the tag. -And now, the greatest moment in the history of ever as a Ravishing Rick Rude is brought to a screeching halt by the Summerslam logo collapsing in the background. The next thing you hear is Vince McMahon, off-camera, muttering "Nice move," and Gene blurting out "Fuck it!" Bobby Heenan walks right off the set. Janetty gets a savate kick of his own and the ring is cleared again. Valentine leaves the ring and goes back to Garvin, and Hercules goes to the floor and attacks again. Backdrop is reversed into a suplex by Michaels. -Summerslam will be back after this five minute pee break...er, intermission. This is one of the rare occasions where it doesn't count as a resthold because Hogan actively fights it the whole time, keeping his arms moving and trying to pry Zeus off of him instead of just playing dead. Warrior Irish-whips him a few times for good measure, then slams him for another two-count. Just two guys going through the motions until the finish. Time for the action! -We're live from East Rutherford, New Jersey and the Meadowlands Arena. He attacks Savage in the corner and sucker punches Zeus on the apron. Valentine draws him into the corner, and gets the pin with his feet on the ropes. -As Tully argues, Anvil drags Arn across the ring and Bret comes back in with an armdrag. Side headlock and fists from Honky, but Dusty reverses and gets punches of his own. Two-count. Yes, I'm going to be that guy and say I enjoyed the match. Those of you ordering pay-per-views back in 1989, could you "call right now" and get the show in half an hour? Anvil & Arn duke it out on the floor. Rude gets a piledriver of his own for two. -Garvin introduces Valentine by...well, I guess theoretically he's flipping shit, but stammers all over himself. Another great bit as Tully gets the tag but again the referee disallows it because they didn't do it just the right way. DUSTY RHODES vs. -Dusty struts and wiggles to taunt Honky and gets an early backdrop. Savage makes it to the ropes but Brutus pulls him off and keeps the hold cinched in. "Hogan" chant erupts to the surprise of nobody and Hogan fights out with elbows. Standing dropkick by Perfect and Rooster rolls out of the ring and you can see Tim White asking him if he's okay. DiBiase makes it back into the ring in time for a countout victory 4 for 8. Savage tags back in so he can get the pin himself, but Hogan yanks him off twice. ANDRE THE GIANT & TWIN TOWERS (with Bobby Heenan & Slick) -Heels are billed at 1.334 pounds. Raymond gets a Boston crab. Neat move by Bret, bodyslamming Arn but keeping him in the hammerlock so Arn lands on his own arm. Headlock by Raymond as another "Tito" chant erupts. Andre is forced out of the ring by the referee, which gives Duggan a window of distraction to attack Akeem with the 2x4 and Smash gets the pin. Bret & Tully start. Six-man brawl erupts and Andre takes care of Duggan as Ax takes care of the Bossman on the outside. Backbreakerby Martel and he tags in Raymond. -Lucky me, my copy is from the original PPV broadcast and it even includes the Countdown Show! Weird issue to raise here but, at least in Podunkville, West Virginia, ordering this pay-per-view in 1989 would have involved driving down to the cable company and picking up a special box, then driving home and installing the box on your TV. 2010 Adam thought he had to write the recap of the match absolutely move-for-move, and I might have a different perspective of stuff now from watching the week-to-week build on WWE Network. Little-to-no resting, and it was just entertaining, that's all. Jesse whips out a "Where's the beef?" reference. KING DUGGAN & DEMOLITION vs. "Million Dollar Man" TED DIBIASE (with Virgil) -DiBiase takes credit for ending Jake Roberts' career with a "neck injury" (Jake was actually dealing with an assault charge). Garvin announces it as a victory by DQ for Hercules. Jacques re-enters with n elbow, but Tito dodges a high knee that wipes out Raymond. If you only have 30 minutes to go before show time, you were pretty much S.O.L. Were we just really behind in West Virginia? Pump splash is blocked by Bret's knees and we have a donnybrook. Valentine knocks Garvin out of the ring and starts a fistfight with Hercules, but Garvin erupts and takes out Valentine. DiBiase attacks from behind and posts Snuka. Jacques whips Tito into Raymond's boots, but Tito surprises him with another sunset flip for two, Jack Tunney has already announced that Garvin has been reinstated as a wrestler. Back in the ring, DiBiase cinches onto a side headlock. -In other action, we can look forward to an encounter between Dusty Rhodes & Honky Tonk Man. Irish whip and a right hand take Akeem off his feet. Savage pounces on Hogan and goes for a pin, but Hogan kicks out. Bodyslam and a legdrop finish things. Dusty fights back with shucking & jiving, as well as closed fists, but I think the shucking is having more effect. Michaels is backdropped on top of Martel. Of course, the moment I type that, Hogan goes limp, but Zeus takes advantage of that to roll on top of him and try for a pin while hanging onto the bearbug, which is actually surprisingly clever. The feud ended up progressing like this: Valentine won a career vs. -I originally wrote this review wayyyyyy back in 2010, and it's completely weird to me when I think about how long I've been writing these reviews. Marty Janetty and Janetty catches Jacques off the top rope with an elbow. Piledriver by Warrior as the referee wakes up, but he counts so slowly that he can only get a two-count. They trade punches and kicks for a moment until DiBiase has a clear advantage. Bobby Heenan & Rick Rude storm onto the set and go insane. 5 for 9. Jacques tags in and gets an abdominal stretch, and since Tony's doing play-by-play, we have absolutely no problem here. 6 for 10. Warrior takes advantage of the distraction with a back suplex. -Backstage, Gene Okerlund is with Demolition & Jim Duggan, who just has his arms full of gimmicks. This crowd is stoked. -Duggan & Akeem start and Duggan gets the early advantage with punches. Back in the ring, Perfect gets the Perfectplex immediately for the win (and a face pop!) Methinks we had a blow-out here. HONKY TONK MAN (with Jimmy Hart) -I actually think a better use of these guys would be to just stick them in a room full of six packs and film that. -Dusty goes off the rope and Jimmy hooks the leg, and we have a chase. Dusty backs Honky into a corner and rams him in the stomach, but Honky fights out and begins punching. Dropkick by Michaels. Arn comes in and stomps away, then rams Anvil into Tully's knee. Suplex and Bret goes for the pin. The only new insight I have to add to this match is that Bret wrote an incredibly emo passage about it in his book and he was just totally miserable about how this was booked. Bobby Heenan is absolutely freaking out through all this. We cut back to an extended crowd shot as Tony tries to keep things smooth and professional by hyping the upcoming matches. Savage makes a desperation charge into the corner and that breaks the hold. Rude punches for further no-selling and Warrior clotheslines him over the top rope. As the referee is distracted by Hart, Honky attacks Dusty with the megaphone, but stupidly targets the stomach instead of the head, so what the hell is he going to accomplish by doing that with Dusty Rhodes? Jacques tries to break the pin but drops an elbow on Martel. Pin attempt gets two. Crowd chants "Tito!" Tito was a pretty amazing guy, not just in terms of being an outstanding worker, but there was just something about him that kept the fans from ever giving up. Back in the ring, Warrior takes a rare trip off the top rope with a double axehandle and goes for the pin; it's a two-count. Good stuff. He fails on a bodyslam attempt and Zeus chokes away. That's why it always struck me as odd when Mean Gene would implore us to "call right now" during these shows. - Savage comes off the top rope with another axehandle. Zeus comes back in but , having established an Achilles' heel, Brutus attacks the eyes and goes for the sleeper. Shoulderblocks by Hogan, but Zeus gets a knee to the back to block the momentum. Bossman tags in and brings Ax back in with him. -Ronnie Garvin, fresh from being shitcanned from his referee gig, shows up in a tuxedo, hinting that he starts a new job tonight. Valentine goes to the floor and tries to pick another fight with Garvin, but Jimmy Hart talks him out of it. Honky, blind with rage falls victim to an atomic drop and punches in the corner. Akeem chops the throat and tags in Big Bossman, but Ax is ready with fists and Smash comes in with the same. 2 for 4. Fist off the top rope and Janetty tags in. This sort of left DiBiase in limbo and he just wandered around the company for a few months while they waited for Jake to come back. Rude spots Piper and poses to taunt him.
