Pokemon Calculators Search RAID PVP List Guide List of second level there is a bit talking about the reddit of changes in the text of the Bonus Defender page. "Starting from now, I don't see this quote both on the 'What's new?'. The page or the defender bonus information page. In reality, I don't see anything any limitation of the number of coins can be collected per day". All our mons have returned after a few minutes or are currently working at least an 8-hour turn to defend a gym ... so we can't say, I can't understand why they can't have a 10 coin roof to take the gym More 10 coins a day ... with a certain capacity to visit the gym every day and collect. Ok This is an update, I think they are working on things, they never seem to do it well, but it's not easy to please everyone. REPORT REPORT to answer or ask a question! from freakout16 4 years 2 months ago it is not easy to satisfy everyone, when you are thinking only about how to make sure people earn less and fill only the most playing pockets, they could all participate as of resets coins' by chance, to this Point on the current theme and how much I can tell the daily limit still applies .. but it is subject to changes. Pokemon Go is filled with a lot of things for players to do as they collect pokemon, challenge gyms, and take a powerful boss raid. To help with these things, players can buy items from the in-game store. All in the Pokemon Go shop, mostly, Pokecoins players' costs. These can be earned in-game or be purchased directly from the shop with real world money. While faster purchase Pokecoins, not everyone is willing to shell out the money. How to get Pokecoins in Pokemon Go the main players way to earn Pokecoins In-game is to have their stay at the Pokemon gyms that their team has resumed. If players can't find a gym occupied by their team, players will have to challenge one and take it to themselves. When players have their Pokemon in a gym, they will earn a Pokecoin every ten minutes stay there. This, however, will be crowned at 50 coins, which means that players cannot get big sums from a gym. In addition to this, players can only get Pokecoins from their Pokemon after being defeated and forced out of the Pokemon gym. The limit of 50 coin also extends multiple Pokemon a day, so if two pokemon reached the limit and I got down the same day, players can get only 50 coins. However, if one of the two PokA © Mon is hunted out one day and the second PokA © mon is hunted on the second day, players will be able to get 100 coins since you refreshed caps at midnight in local times of players.
