In it, the producer and rapper duo celebrate a life of riches while smiling as if they took a cookie from the jar without their parents knowing (and it was absolutely delicious). They're fortunate to be where they are in life and they know it, so they give a couple of kids a glimpse to let them know that they can have it, too. That is, if they grind like there's no tomorrow. We're not crying there's just a plate of onions somewhere nearby. Ballin'" begins with two kids lying on the ground of a small house, playing a video, and it shows Mustard and Ricch zooming down an empty freeway at speeds that would probably get them citations for reckless driving. The tune that sounds best for pouring up drinks after work gets playing and as the beat bounces and shakes, Ricch practically bellows just how awesome it is to have money. While he sings, the rappers' activities are juxtaposed with what the kids are doing. When Mustard and Ricch play cards for chips at a high-class casino, the kids use some cheap cards and gamble Monopoly money. While the producer and rapper have a blast in their foreign car, the boys race using miniature versions from the local toy store. At the end of the video, Mustard and Ricch pull up in the boys' neighborhood and show off their expensive car. Inevitably, their mouths drop to the ground and they're lost for words. While they ponder what they ponder what they can buy something that cool. We're left to believe that this is the spark that pushes the boys to excellence. Mustard dropped Perfect 10 in June. The LP also contains the previously released single "Pure Water" that features Migos. Watch Mustard and Ricch have a good ol' expensive time in "Ballin'" up above. Roddy Ricch copped seven $250,000 diamond championship rings from celebrity jeweller Elliot Eliantte last month and Mustard just received one of them. On Tuesday (June 16), the superproducer shared a video of the ring on his Instagram Story from the studio with Roddy. From the background, the Compton rapper congratulated his collaborator for the 2020 Grammy nomination on their Billboard Hot 100 No. 1 hit "Ballin." "Congratulations," Roddy tells Mustard in the clip. "You know what I'm saying? You know what it is nigga!" The ring features a gramophone on the top with the numbers 700, 60, 10 on one side and a dollar sign on the est Rap/Sung Performance category in the 2020 Grammy Awards, but ultimately lost to DJ Khaled's "Higher" with Nipsey Hussle and John Legend. Roddy did win in the Best Rap Performance category for his appearance on Nipsey's Hit-Boy-produced "Racks In The Middle," however. related news TM88 Has Unreleased Records With Nicki Minaj, Juice Wrld, Roddy Ricch & More June 17, 2020 Roddy previewed new music on Instagram back in March and has been posting from the studio throughout quarantine, so it looks like he's preparing to drop more potential Grammy-winning music.
